The Poul la Cour Prize 2021 was awarded on 24 November at Copenhagen City Hall

The Poul la Cour Prize is awarded every two years. This is done in collaboration with Wind Europe, which represents the European wind turbine industry. See more at www.windeurope.org. The award is given to a person who has made a significant contribution to the development of the wind turbine industry or the supporting technologies.

The award went in 2021 to a person who has made a special effort outside the traditional area of developing wind technology.

Anne Velenturf was chosen for her great efforts as a researcher in the circular field, which we will probably hear much more about in the coming years.

The winner of the award was Anne Velenturf, Dr and Senior Research Fellow in Circular Economy, School of Civil Engineering, University of Leeds.

From the presentation you can see from the left: Bjarke Thomassen, chairman of the Poul la Cour Foundation. Birger T. Madsen, Poul la Cour Foundation Board. Anne Velenturf, University of Leeds, England. Giles Dickson, CEO Wind Europe.

New board member

Jytte Thorndahl has joined the board of the Poul la Cour Foundation. Jytte has previously been a member of the foundation's board, and we are happy that she is back.

Jytte is an M.A., and employed as a museum curator at the Energy Museum in Bjerringbro.

The current position of the Poul la Cour Museum

If we look back at the past year, we have, of course, like everywhere else, had to conform to the given restrictions. We have had to close down for periods and the museum is also closed at the moment. Financially, of course, we have lost something, but we have survived. In the last half of 2021, we have had a large number of visitors, so many that the total number of visitors is almost equivalent to a normal year.

We would like to thank everyone who has supported our work in 2021 and we wish everyone a Happy New Year.

Kind regards Bjarke Thomassen
